Course Description:

This course provides students with an initial exposure to research in ESE. This is a mentored experience and requires the agreement of an ESE faculty member to serve in a mentorship role. Students must identify a mentor and obtain their agreement before registering for this course. Activities are to be designed by the student in conjunction with the faculty mentor, and will amount to 2-4 hours of commitment per week. Examples of such activities include, but are not limited to, observation of laboratory experiments, attendance of weekly group meetings, discussions with the mentor, or independent readings. The course is suitable for students at all levels.
